

Undergraduate Fellowship in Science, Religion, and Culture

2018

Science, Religion, and Culture
HARVARD DIVINITY SCHOOL

Open to HARVARD COLLEGE STUDENTS, the Undergraduate Fellows Program is a 2 semester competitive fellowship providing an opportunity for young scholars to develop and work on research projects on questions of Science, Religion, and Culture. Undergraduate fellows become members of a lively research community and develop their research projects under the guidance of faculty and doctoral students. Undergraduate fellows can work on their junior or senior theses or other major research projects. Fellows are expected to attend the the biweekly colloquium and present their research at the Science, Religion, and Culture program Annual Symposium.
